ADVISORY OPINION OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Re: Proposed Initiative, “The DC Equal Homeownership Act”

Ms. Terri Stroud
General Counsel
Board of Elections

Dear Ms. Stroud:

This memorandum responds to your June 29, 2026, request, on behalf of the Board of Elections (“Board”), that the Office of the Attorney General provide an advisory opinion on whether the proposed initiative, the “The DC Equal Homeownership Act” (“Proposed Initiative”), is a proper subject of initiative in the District of Columbia, pursuant to D.C. Official Code § 1-1001.16(b)(1A)(B)(i).

The Proposed Initiative is the second version of a measure that we opined was a proper subject in our attached January 15, 2026, advisory opinion.¹ Broadly speaking, it is similar to the first version, except that it removes language requiring Council authorization for certain actions. Specifically, section 2 omits requirements for “public homeownership units” to be separately authorized by Council, section 3 removes the requirement for Council authorization for the District to prioritize District-owned land and housing resources for publicly developed, permanently affordable homeownership, and section 4 eliminates the requirement for the Council to separately authorize land use for District agencies to develop public homeownership units. Finally, section 6 removes the requirement for Council authorization before District agencies may promulgate rules to implement the act. We previously concluded that, even though the original measure contemplated further Council action, the measure nonetheless was legislative because it “include[d] an action which adopt[ed] a policy affecting the public generally and set[] in motion the effectuation of that policy.”² We also concluded that the measure did not appropriate funds.³ Because we believe the Proposed Initiative—which even more directly sets in motion public policy than did the original measure—is legislative and remains subject to appropriations, we conclude that the Proposed Initiative is also a proper subject.

We also believe that these changes remedy what the Board found to be deficiencies that led it to conclude that the original measure was not legislative and therefore not a proper subject.⁴ The Board refused the measure because the “essential actions described” constituted “a discretionary authorization granted to agencies to provide ‘Public Homeownership Units’ which[] . . . may be constructed ‘only if separately authorized by the Council.’”⁵ The Board further noted “that units [must] be made available in accordance with the Affordability Formula that is[] . . . established by regulations that must be approved by the Council.”⁶ Thus, the Board concluded that “the Measure does not constitute a law because, even if adopted by the voters and funded by the Council, it would still have no effect unless the Council exercised its discretion and provided the other authorizations that are contemplated.”⁷

In our view, the Proposed Initiative largely addresses the Board’s concerns. To the extent these concerns specifically included the requirement in section 2(2) for the Council to approve rules establishing the “Affordability Formula,” we do not believe this requirement renders the measure non-legislative.

Notably, section 3(b) now provides that “the District shall give preference to the development of Public Homeownership Units under this Act,” without further authorization from the Council, whenever “District-owned land suitable for residential development is disposed of or developed,” subject to appropriations. By using the word “shall,” section 3(b) places a mandatory obligation on the District “to compel observance of the views announced” by the Proposed Initiative.⁸

The remaining provisions provide further detail to guide the District in carrying out the command of section 3(b). Section 2(1) defines a Public Homeownership Unit as “a for-sale residential housing unit constructed on District-owned land and sold pursuant to this Act.” According to section 4(c), Public Homeownership Units may be sold with no down payment and priced according to an “Affordability Formula,” which section 2(2) defines as “a uniform, non-discretionary pricing methodology established by rule and approved by the Council, designed to target, but not guarantee, a monthly housing payment substantially below prevailing market rents and approximately $700 per month in 2026 dollars, inclusive of principal, interest, taxes, and insurance.” Section 6 authorizes District agencies to “promulgate rules necessary to implement this act consistent with this Act and applicable law.”

The sum of these key provisions is that the Proposed Initiative requires the District to give preference to developing homeownership units when it develops or disposes of District-owned land, subject to appropriations, and those units must be priced according to a formula that targets a certain monthly payment, as established by agency rule subject to Council approval. Thus, the measure would “adopt[] a policy affecting the public generally”—that the District must prioritize developing Public Homeownership Units when it disposes of or develops District-owned land—“and set[] in motion the effectuation of that policy”—by specifying what constitutes a Public Homeownership Unit and authorizing agencies to determine the affordability formula for those units by rule.⁹

The only action that the Proposed Initiative leaves to the Council, aside from appropriating funds, is approving rules proposed by agencies to establish the affordability formula under section 2(2). This alone does not mean the Proposed Initiative fails to propose a law. When the Council approves an agency rulemaking pursuant to an underlying statute, that does not mean the underlying statute leaves it to the Council’s discretion to “adopt[] a policy” by approving the agency’s rule.¹⁰ The legislature has already adopted the policy in the underlying statute. Instead, the Council participates with the rulemaking agency in “the formulation of rules and regulations for the purposes of . . . effectuation” of the “policy declared by the legislature,” which is exactly what a “law” may require.¹¹ In fact, under the District of Columbia Home Rule Act, when, pursuant to an act, the Council passes a resolution approving an action that an agency proposes, the Council’s resolution must “implement that act.”¹² Moreover, the right of initiative is coextensive with the Council’s legislative power, with certain exceptions,¹³ and the Council routinely uses that power to adopt acts authorizing agencies to promulgate implementing rules subject to Council approval.¹⁴ Since such Council acts undoubtedly make law, an initiative doing the same thing similarly proposes a law.

The Proposed Initiative is a proper subject. Therefore, as you requested, we have attached recommended technical changes to ensure that it is in the proper legislative form.¹⁵

SHORT TITLE

The DC Equal Homeownership Act

SUMMARY STATEMENT

This act would require the District to give preference for developing permanently affordable homeownership units when disposing of or developing District-owned land suitable for residential development. It would allow the sale of such units without requiring a down payment and priced according to an affordability formula intended to target monthly payments of approximately $700 in 2026 dollars, to be established by agency rule approved by the Council. The act would require appropriations to be implemented.

LEGISLATIVE TEXT

BE IT ENACTED BY THE ELECTORS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, That this act may be cited as the “DC Equal Homeownership Act”.

Sec. 2. Definitions.

For the purposes of this act, the term:

(1) “Public Homeownership Unit” means a for-sale residential housing unit constructed on District-owned land and sold pursuant to this act.

(2) “Affordability Formula” means a uniform, non-discretionary pricing methodology established by rule and approved by the Council, designed to target, but not guarantee, a monthly housing payment substantially below prevailing market rents and approximately $700 per month in 2026 dollars, inclusive of principal, interest, taxes, and insurance. Nothing in this act shall be construed to require the District to provide subsidies, financing, or expenditures absent appropriations approved by Council.

(3) “Eligible Purchaser” means a District resident meeting eligibility requirements under section 5.

(4) “Priority Consideration” means a regulatory preference that does not guarantee selection, create a right to housing, establish an entitlement, or condition eligibility on political activity.

Sec. 3. Policy regarding District housing resources.

(a) Policy: Subject to federal law, and the Home Rule Act, District-owned land and District housing resources may be prioritized for publicly developed, permanently affordable homeownership rather than private-developer rental housing.

(b) Disposition Preference.

When District-owned land suitable for residential development is disposed of or developed, the District shall give preference to the development of Public Homeownership Units under this Act, subject to appropriations approved by the Council and consistent with existing law.

Sec. 4. Public homeownership program authorization.

(a) Authorization. District-owned land may be used for the development of Public Homeownership Units consistent with this act.

(b) Funding. Implementation of activities requiring expenditure shall be subject to appropriations approved by the Council of the District of Columbia.

(c) Pricing/Down Payment. Units may be sold with no required down payment, priced according to the Affordability Formula.

(d) No Fiscal Mandate. Nothing in this act shall be construed to require the District to construct units, provide subsidies, close financing gaps, or incur financial obligations absent appropriations approved by Council.

(e) Uniform Application. The Affordability Formula must be applied consistently to similarly situated purchasers.

Sec. 5. Eligibility and priority consideration.

(a) Eligibility: Eligible Purchasers are District residents who:

(1) Are first-time homebuyers; and

(2) Have completed approved homeownership counseling.

(b) Permissible Priority Consideration:

(1) First-time homebuyers who have resided in the District since before January 1, 2000;

(2) Residents who currently live in, or previously lived in, neighborhoods that experienced historic housing discrimination, redlining, or sustained disinvestment, as defined by rule;

(3) Former District residents involuntarily displaced due to rising housing costs or redevelopment;

(4) Residents with demonstrated housing need (cost-burdened, overcrowded, housing-insecure);

(5) Residents who served as essential workers during the COVID-19 public health emergency; and

(6) Any additional categories established by rule consistent with this act.

(c) Political Neutrality: Priority cannot be conditioned on political activity, petition participation, or First Amendment exercise.

(d) No Entitlement: Priority does not create a right to housing or private action.

Sec. 6. Implementation and rulemaking.

District agencies may promulgate rules necessary to implement this act consistent with this act and applicable law.

Sec. 7. Applicability.

(a) This act shall apply upon the date of inclusion of its fiscal effect in an approved budget and financial plan.

(b) The Chief Financial Officer shall certify the date of the inclusion of the fiscal effect in an approved budget and financial plan, and provide notice to the Budget Director of the Council of the certification.

(c)(l) The Budget Director shall cause the notice of the certification to be published in the District of Columbia Register.

(2) The date of publication of the notice of the certification shall not affect the applicability of this act.

Sec. 8. Effective date.

This act shall take effect after a 30-day period of congressional review as provided in section 602(c)(1) of the District of Columbia Home Rule Act, approved December 24, 1973 (87 Stat. 813; D.C. Official Code § 1-206.02(c)(1)), and publication in the District of Columbia Register.

ADVISORY OPINION OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Re: Proposed Initiative, “The DC Equal Homeownership Act”

Ms. Terri Stroud
General Counsel
Board of Elections
1015 Half Street, S.E.
Washington, D.C. 20003
ogc@dcboe.org

Dear Ms. Stroud:

This memorandum responds to your December 23, 2025 request, on behalf of the Board of Elections (“Board”), that the Office of the Attorney General (the “Office”) provide an advisory opinion on whether the proposed initiative, the “The DC Equal Homeownership Act” (“Proposed Initiative”), is a proper subject of initiative in the District of Columbia, pursuant to D.C. Official Code § 1-1001.16(b)(1A)(B)(i). For the reasons set forth in this letter, the Proposed Initiative is a proper subject of initiative.¹

STATUTORY BACKGROUND

The District Charter (“Charter”) establishes the right of initiative, which allows District electors to “propose laws (except laws appropriating funds) and present such proposed laws directly to the registered qualified electors of the District of Columbia for their approval or disapproval.”² The Charter requires that the Board submit an initiative to the voters “without alteration.”³ Pursuant to the Charter, the Council adopted section 16 of the Election Code of 1955⁴ as an implementing statute detailing the initiative process.⁵ Under this statute, any registered qualified elector may begin the initiative process by filing the full text of the proposed measure, a summary statement of not more than 100 words, and a short title with the Board.⁶ After receiving a proposed initiative, ¹ If the Board accepts the Proposed Initiative, in accordance with D.C. Official Code § 1-1001.16(c)(3), this Office may provide further recommendations for ensuring that it is prepared in the proper legislative form.

² D.C. Official Code § 1-204.101(a).

³ Id. § 1-204.103.

⁴ Effective June 7, 1979 (D.C. Law 3-1; D.C. Official Code § 1-1001.16).

⁵ D.C. Official Code § 1-204.107.

⁶ Id. § 1-1001.16(a)(1).

the Board must refuse to accept it if the Board determines that it is not a “proper subject” of initiative.⁷

A proposed initiative is not a proper subject for initiative if it does not propose a law, is not in the proper form, or if it would:

- Appropriate funds;
- Violate or seek to amend the District of Columbia Home Rule Act (“Home Rule Act”);
- Violate the U.S. Constitution;
- Authorize or have the effect of authorizing discrimination prohibited under the Human Rights Act of 1977; or
- Negate or limit an act of the Council enacted pursuant to section 446 of the Home Rule Act.⁸

If the Board determines that a proposed initiative is a proper subject of initiative, it must accept the measure and, within 20 calendar days, prepare and adopt a true and impartial summary statement, prepare a short title, prepare the proposed initiative in the proper legislative form, and request a fiscal impact statement from the Office of the Chief Financial Officer.⁹ The Board must then adopt the summary statement, short title, and legislative form at a public meeting.¹⁰ Within 24 hours after adoption, the Board must publish its formulation and the fiscal impact statement.¹¹ If no registered qualified elector objects to the Board’s formulation by seeking review in Superior Court within 10 days after publication in the District of Columbia Register, the Board must certify the measure and provide the proposer with a petition form for use in securing the required signatures to place the proposed initiative on the ballot at an election.¹² If the requisite number of valid signatures from registered electors is obtained, the Board must then submit the initiative “without alteration” at the next primary, general, or city-wide special election held at least 90 days after it certifies the measure.¹³

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The Proposed Initiative would establish a policy statement regarding publicly owned housing resources and authorize a “Public Homeownership Program” through which District agencies may develop affordable “Public Homeownership Units,” subject to Council funding and authorization.

Specifically, section 3 of the Proposed Initiative would establish a “[p]olicy” that, “[s]ubject to federal law, the Home Rule Act, and Council authorization, District-owned land and public housing resources may be prioritized for publicly developed, permanently affordable homeownership rather than private-developer rental housing.” It would further provide that “[t]his is a statement of policy only” and that it does not mandate expenditures, appropriate funds, require land use, limit Council authority, or create enforceable obligations, and that “[n]o provision has independent legal effect without separate Council action.”

Section 4 of the Proposed Initiative would authorize District agencies to develop “Public Homeownership Units” “only if the Council separately appropriates funds or authorizes land use.” These units would not require a down payment and would be priced according to an “Affordability Formula.” The Proposed Initiative defines “Affordability Formula” as:

a uniform, non-discretionary pricing methodology established by [rule] and approved by the Council designed to target, but not guarantee, a monthly housing payment substantially below prevailing market rents and approximately $700 per month in 2025 dollars, inclusive of principal, interest, taxes, and insurance. The formula does not require District subsidies or mandatory financing.

Section 5 of the Proposed Initiative would establish requirements for “eligible purchasers” and provide for “priority consideration” for certain residents.¹⁴

Finally, section 6 would authorize District agencies to issue rules necessary to implement the Proposed Initiative as authorized by the Council and in compliance with law. Section 7 would provide that the Proposed Initiative “has no fiscal impact and is implemented only if included in an approved Council budget or plan,” and that “[o]therwise, it functions solely as a statement of policy.”

Because the Proposed Initiative does not violate any of the limitations on the use of the initiative process, we conclude that it is a proper subject of initiative.

The right of initiative “is a power of direct legislation by the electorate.”¹⁵ Accordingly, a threshold requirement for any initiative is that it must “propose [a] law[.]”¹⁶ This right must be construed “liberally,” and “only those limitations expressed in the law or clear[ly] and compelling[ly] implied” may be imposed on that right.¹⁷ As the District of Columbia Court of Appeals has explained, with certain exceptions, “the power of the electorate to act by initiative is coextensive

¹⁴ We note that section 5 of the Proposed Initiative is ambiguous. It is not evident from the language on its face what the relationship is between section 5 detailing requirements for “eligible purchasers” and “priority consideration” and the rest of the Proposed Initiative. Nothing in the express language of the Summary Statement or Legislative Text states what “eligible purchasers” are eligible to purchase, or how “priority consideration” would be used. Based on the overall structure of the Proposed Initiative, however, we would construe these terms to establish a framework for determining who may purchase a Public Homeownership Unit developed under section 4.

with the legislative power.”¹⁸ The District’s legislative power is limited by the Constitution and the Home Rule Act, including the Charter.¹⁹

1. The Proposed Initiative is legislative.

The Proposed Initiative satisfies the requirement that an initiative must propose a law. As the D.C. Court of Appeals has explained, because “the power of the electorate to act by initiative is coextensive with the legislative power[,] an initiative cannot extend to administrative matters.”²⁰ In distinguishing legislative acts from administrative matters, the Court noted that legislative power “includes an action which adopts a policy affecting the public generally and sets in motion the effectuation of that policy.”²¹ A legislative act “is the declaration and adoption of a policy and program by which affairs of general public concern are to be controlled.”²²

Construing the right of initiative “liberally,” as we must, the Proposed Initiative meets the threshold requirement of proposing a law. Section 4 authorizes District agencies to undertake a specific program: developing “Public Homeownership Units,” which may be priced and sold under an “Affordability Formula,” as those terms are defined in section 2. Under section 4(a), agencies may act “only if the Council separately appropriates funds or authorizes land use.” Section 5, as we construe it, establishes eligibility and priority criteria for determining who may purchase these “Public Homeownership Units.” It is true that the Proposed Initiative requires further Council legislative action before District agencies may carry out this program, and that whether the Council acts is entirely within its discretion. However, the Proposed Initiative establishes basic parameters of the program and designates District agencies as responsible for carrying out aspects of the program. This is sufficient to “set[] in motion the effectuation of th[e] policy” that the Proposed Initiative establishes.²³

2. The Proposed Initiative does not appropriate funds.

The Proposed Initiative also does not violate the Home Rule Act’s express prohibition against initiatives appropriating funds.²⁴ The D.C. Court of Appeals has stated that “the exclusion from initiatives of laws appropriating funds is ‘very broad[] . . . extend[ing] . . . to the full measure of the Council’s role in the District’s budget process.’”²⁵ Although the right of initiative must be construed broadly, the court has construed this limitation to prohibit an initiative that would compel the allocation of funds to carry out mandatory provisions.²⁶

“Initiatives can, however, ‘propose authorizing legislation that the Council could enact,’ . . . or ‘contain[] a non-binding policy statement that revenues should be allocated for specified purposes.’”²⁷ The D.C. Court of Appeals has long recognized the distinction “between the right by initiative to authorize the establishment of a new [program] . . . and the authorization of appropriations for the” program.²⁸ In recounting the legislative history of the “laws appropriating funds” limitation, the court has observed that the Council intended “that the citizens by initiative could create a[] [new program] but could not also fund it. Once a program or activity was authorized, it was for the Council initially to determine in the budget process whether and what amount of revenue would be dedicated to that program or activity.”²⁹ Thus, according to the court, “[t]he initiative right to propose authorizing legislation that the Council could enact is essentially unfettered.”³⁰

The Proposed Initiative does not violate the Home Rule Act’s prohibition against measures appropriating funds because it expressly makes all steps to implement the program contingent on the Council separately providing authority and appropriations. None of its provisions “impose . . . mandatorily-phrased obligations upon [the District government] to effectuate its goals.”³¹ Section 3, by its express terms, “is a statement of policy only.” Moreover, although section 4 of the Proposed Initiative authorizes District agencies to develop a “Public Homeownership Program” with respect to this policy, it conditions the program’s implementation on separate Council “fund[ing] or authoriz[ation].” And section 6 permits District agencies to issue rules implementing the Public Homeownership Program only with Council authorization. These rules are necessary to establish the “Affordability Formula,” which is a prerequisite for implementing the Public Homeownership Program. Therefore, even the provisions in the Proposed Initiative that purport to authorize a new program do not by themselves authorize the District to do anything in the absence of further Council legislative action. Finally, section 7 makes the entire Proposed Initiative subject to appropriations.³² Thus, even if the Office of the Chief Financial Officer determines that the Proposed Initiative would have unbudgeted costs, the measure by itself cannot compel the allocation of funds because it would require the Council to appropriate funds for it to take effect.³³

The DC Equal Homeownership Act

SUMMARY STATEMENT

This initiative establishes a nonbinding statement of policy that, when separately authorized by the Council of the District of Columbia and permitted by law, District-owned land and public housing resources may be used for publicly developed, affordable homeownership instead of private rental housing. It also allows District agencies, only with Council approval and funding, to develop and sell for-sale housing on District-owned land with no required down-payment using an affordability formula intended to target monthly payments of $700 in 2025 dollars. This initiative does not appropriate funds or create any entitlement.

LEGISLATIVE TEXT

BE IT ENACTED BY THE ELECTORS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, That this act may be cited as the “DC Equal Homeownership Act”.

Sec. 2. Definitions.

For the purposes of this act, the term:

(1) “Public Homeownership Unit” means a for-sale residential housing unit constructed on District-owned land and sold pursuant to this Act, only if separately authorized by the Council.

(2) “Affordability Formula” means a uniform, non-discretionary pricing methodology established by rule and approved by the Council, designed to target, but not guarantee, a monthly housing payment substantially below prevailing market rents and approximately $700 per month in 2025 dollars, inclusive of principal, interest, taxes, and insurance. The formula does not require District subsidies or mandatory financing.

(3) “Eligible Purchaser” means District resident meeting eligibility requirements under section 4.

(4) “Priority Consideration” means a nonbinding regulatory preference that does not guarantee selection, create a right to housing, establish an entitlement, or condition eligibility on political activity.

Sec. 3. Policy regarding public housing resources.

(a) Policy: Subject to federal law, the Home Rule Act, and Council authorization, District-owned land and public housing resources may be prioritized for publicly developed, permanently affordable homeownership rather than private-developer rental housing.

(b) This is a statement of policy only. It does not:

- (1) Mandate expenditures;
- (2) Appropriate funds;
- (3) Require land use;
- (4) Limit Council authority; or
- (5) Create enforceable obligations.

(c) No provision has independent legal effect without separate Council action.

Sec. 4. Public homeownership program authorization.

(a) Conditional Authority: District agencies may develop Public Homeownership Units only if the Council separately appropriates funds or authorizes land use.

(b) Pricing/Down Payment: Units may be sold with no required down payment, priced according to the Affordability Formula.

(c) No Fiscal Mandate: This Act does not require construction, subsidies, financing gaps, or impose financial obligations absent Council approval.

(d) Uniform Application: The Affordability Formula must be applied consistently to similarly situated purchasers.

Sec. 5. Eligibility and priority consideration.

(a) Eligibility: Eligible Purchasers are District residents who:

(1) Are first-time homebuyers

(2) Have completed approved homeownership counseling

(b) Permissible Priority Consideration (nonbinding, place-based, safe):

(1) First-time homebuyers who have resided in the District since before January 1, 2000;

(2) Residents who currently live in, or previously lived in, neighborhoods that experienced historic housing discrimination, redlining, or sustained disinvestment, as defined by rule;

(3) Former District residents involuntarily displaced due to rising housing costs or redevelopment;
